RULER OF BARODA, SON OF HERDSMAN

Maharajah Gackwar Has Governed Indian State for 50 Years.

Washington.—The gackwar of Baroda has achieved a record. He has sat upon his throne for 50 years, an unusual term among Indian rulers in recent centuries. Therefore, Baroda has had a jubilee, climaxed by a great state dinner at which the important citizens of Baroda sat cross-legged on the floor of the palace audience hall with eastern vizards before them, while the maharajah gackwar sat alone at a table in a chair of state. The state over which the oddly titled ruler has presided for half a century is described in a bulletin from the Washington (D. C.) headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Islands" on Dry Land.
"Baroda, one of the wealthiest of the Indian native states, is a group of 'islands' on dry land," says the bulletin. "Only prewar Prussia had more scattered dominions. There are four main divisions, but about each of the larger regions cluster small districts, and even separate villages that fairly pepper the territory of the Bombay presidency of British India, in which the gackwar's 'islands' lie. There is probably a separate fragment of Barodan territory for each of the 50 years the gackwar has ruled.

"The territories, which total 8,000 square miles, begin near the west coast of India, 150 miles north of Bombay city, and extend for 200 miles to the north. Other fragments are scattered off to the west on the Kathiwar peninsula, the most remote being 225 miles from Baroda City, the capital.

"Most of the state is level alluvium in a high state of cultivation. This is especially true of the region lying to the north of the capital. With its fields, well ordered hedges, and groves of trees, this section has much the appearance of English park land. Some of India's best cotton land is in Baroda, and the state has 25 gins and a cotton mill. Rice and wheat are raised, and a considerable area is devoted to poppy growing for the making of opium. Growers of poppy are licensed, and the handling of opium is a state monopoly.

"Baroda City has a population of 108,000. There, and in the vicinity, are the palaces of the gackwar. The white stucco palace of Nazim Bagh is notable chiefly as the Barodan strong box. In it are stored the gackwar's jewels, said to be worth $10,000,000. Among them is one of the world's famous diamonds, 'the Star of the South,' of 125 karats. Another unit of the collection is a cloth embroidered with precious stones and seed pearls. This was prepared for a Mohammedan ruler and was meant as a cover for the tomb of Mohammed.

"Four miles south of the city is the Makapura palace, the country place of the gackwar. It is noted for its fine gardens, fountains, grottoes, and pergolas. The chief of the ruler's residences is the Lakshmi Vilas. In it is a huge Darbar hall around which are covered and screened wooden galleries from which the women of the gackwar's menage may observe state functions without being seen.

"Leading off the main street of Baroda City are numerous 'wards,' each set aside for a separate caste or class. These are cul de sacs, and across their entrances are heavy gates. In certain sections of the town English influences are noticeable. Baroda college has its cricket grounds, its tennis courts, and its gymnasium. Baroda spends more on public education than any other native state, maintaining public schools for both boys and girls. There are even zenana classes for adult women who must remain in seclusion.

From Hut to Palace.

"The 2,500,000 inhabitants of Baroda belong predominantly to the Hindu faith, and the pinnacles of numerous Hindu temples pierce the skyline of the capital. The minority religions are not molested, and the gackwar, in fact, patronizes one of the chief Mohammedan festivals.

"The life of the present gackwar has been like that of the hero of a fairy tale. In 1873 the ruler of Baroda was accused of attempting to poison the British resident, and was deposed. He had no heir, so a search was made by the British government for a colonial relative. A young lad, the son of a humble herdsman, was chosen and was placed on the throne in 1878. It is he who is the present gackwar.

"Baroda is important as well as wealthy. The gackwar is one of only five Indian rulers entitled to receive a salute of 21 guns anywhere in India."

Daylight-Saving Plan Proves Old, Old Stuff

Dublin.—The adoption of summer time (daylight-saving time) is no novelty, but only a reversion to a modified form to a custom that existed for thousands of years prior to the Twelfth century A. D., according to the dean of St. Patrick's cathedral here.

An Irish son dial of the Ninth century recently discovered in County Down and another in County Kerry confirm conclusions to that effect drawn from the Oster dial in Palestine. The hour varied in length according to the season and latitude, the daylight hour in Ireland being in summer 19 minutes and decreasing in winter to 42.

Australia Holds Record

Melbourne, Australia, asserts it has one of the busiest railway stations in the world in the Flinders street terminal, through which 300,000 persons pass daily. Retelling London stations could show bigger figures, the British Railway Gazette checked the daily flow of passengers through London's largest stations, Liverpool street and Waterloo, but found the total at the former was only 244,898.—New York Herald Tribune.

Women Architects

Nine women are enrolled in a course of straight architecture at the University of Illinois. The course is of four years and leads to a degree of bachelor of science. They have the same curricula as the men and are required to do the same work. Instructors in the class say there is great opportunity for women in architecture, especially along domestic lines.

THE SCIATIC SCOURGE

There are few sensations more painful than the twinges of sciatica, or what is known as sciatic rheumatism. This is probably due to the fact that it is a direct motor nerve which is affected. Everyone who has ever had a tooth filled knows the pain that follows prodding of a nerve.

If the fact that sciatica is a nerve condition makes it the more painful, it also makes it the more quickly and easily relieved, when right measures are employed.

Chiropractic spinal adjustments are the specific method, not only of relieving the pain, but of removing the cause which makes the condition possible. This cause is spinal pressure upon the sciatic nerve. Adjustments remove the pressure.

SCIATIC RHEUMATISM QUICKLY RELIEVED.

"I suffered with sciatic rheumatism so bad I could hardly walk and was in almost constant pain. I could scarcely get up to the chiropractor's office, but after making five adjustments, more than a year ago, I am entirely well and have had no symptoms of a return."—M. P. Coates, Chiropractor Research Bureau, Statement No. 2187-L.

Triple Murder At Muskegon

Father Unwears Package That Contained Bomb and He and His Daughter and Her Fiance Are Torn to Pieces—Three Theories Advanced.

Muskegon, Mich., May 28.—Jeanette Krubaech, 18, injured yesterday by the bomb explosion which killed her fiance, William Frankie, 26, of Chicago, and her father, August Krubaech, township supervisor, died here today.

Three possible motives that might have prompted the sender of the bomb were being investigated by postal inspectors and county officials here today.

It was yesterday morning that August Krubaech proprietor of the Three Lake Tavern near here, stood in the lobby of his hotel and received a neat package from the rural mail carrier. Standing near were Krubaech's daughter, Jeanette, and her fiance, William Frankie of Chicago.

Frankie and Jeanette planned to marry Saturday and they believed the package contained a wedding present. The happy pair crowded close to Jeanette's father as he unwrapped the parcel. It raised the lid—simultaneously a terrific explosion rocked the building. Krubaech and Frankie were killed instantly, the blast literally tearing them to pieces. The girl was injured so badly she died today. The explosion wrecked the building. Three theories were today advanced: Political animosity for Krubaech, known foe of the Ku Klux Klan; revenge of a disappointed suitor for the hand of his daughter, or the work of a prohibition fanatic.

The bomb was mailed in Muskegon. A piece of the wrapper was found which bore the return address of "C. Green, 1000 Reynolds street, Muskegon Heights."

This Green is a son-in-law of Krubaech and until two months ago lived at the Tavern with his wife's parents. Green was questioned by investigators but later released. They believe the sender forged Green's name to the package to avert suspicion on the part of Krubaech.

SOBERED FLORIDA.

The reports indicate that the great Florida boom has gone into eclipse. It appears that the Florida "rush" is checked, even if the vast structure in land speculation has not entirely collapsed. In explanation of the noticeable lack of inspiring news from the land of flowers, an article in the Wall Street Journal indicates that the present situation is suggestive of the headache and sobered reflection of the "morning after." Florida itself is all right. It is still there with its charms of climate and scene, its orange groves, palms, sand, swamps and alligators. But reckless speculators are floating with difficulty, or unable to float at all, in the turn of the tide. After speeding so rapidly yet so long toward its utmost possible limit, the boom has slumped. And it is not merely the little fellows who are in trouble, after straining to clutch fabulous sums overnight. Not only are "weak accounts being taken over," but bankers are forming "rescue crews" to help out many a big operator. Instead of a rush to invest, investors are rushing to get loans to "carry them" or their "frozen assets."

Sooner or later it had to come, and it is better for the casualty list that it be sooner than later. A boom that runs wild has never failed to come to a sudden and a jarring halt. Florida is a permanent winter garden, destined to solid and enduring prosperity, but it can not continue to create gold out of mere paper, or the extravagance of optimistic rhetoric, for the benefit of the speculators of the United States.

WORLD "MOVIE" CONGRESS.

An international motion-picture congress in Paris is announced for next fall, with many problems for discussion. Already twenty nations have accepted invitations to the meeting, and doubtless a good many more will be represented. So rich and widespread an industry would naturally find more to discuss than its world-girdling business and its rights under the law. One of the announced subjects is the possible influence of the movies in leading youth back to the farm—a rather difficult achievement, it would seem, for the general impression now is that the movies are no little concerned in attracting boys and girls from country to town. Among the other subjects announced are censorship, and the relation of the photo-drama to dancing, music and all the arts.

But the subject of supreme interest to nineteen of the delegates already expecting to be present is no doubt the secret of American pre-eminence in filmdom, and some of them are said to have openly stated that to pry into that interesting secret is their object. Why do barbarous and backward peoples as well as civilized centers the world over prefer American films? Can Hollywood be induced to "talk for publication"? Will it consent to give the answer in practical form, and be generous enough to turn the congress into a school for film producers, thus giving other countries a chance to share in an over-flowing prosperity? If anything of the sort is expected, there is likely to be disappointment. There might be more promising results if European producers should send well chosen men to Hollywood, there quietly to get employment and learn the art at its fountain head.

Most of the comments on the startling decrease in the birth rate in this country—29 per cent in the past thirty years—are to the effect that it is the result of economic reasons, the climbing cost of living. But that is by no means the whole of it. If the average citizen can afford to have a new automobile every two years, he ought to be able to afford to let his wife have a child once or twice in fifteen years. As it is, it is a story of more and more automobiles and fewer and fewer children.

"You're a fine bunch; you get up and punch them that way you get your conversation better," Stuckey Lewis told his "Sunday school class," attended by the daughters of eight discomfited.

In Kansas City. What is hard to understand is that these spineless clergymen, who seem to have "not and tuck it," were willing to let the rough-riding iconoclast advertise his novels at their expense.

The wife of ex-Congressman Langley of Kentucky, who is in a Federal penitentiary, has presented her name to the Republicans of her Congressional district as a candidate for her husband's place in Congress—which is carrying the "Ma" Ferguson stunt rather too far.

RADIUM FOR SKIN CANCER.

The Huntington Hospital in Boston has made a study of the effects of radium in treating cancer of the skin.

Although many of the cases were naturally in old folks, the average age being about sixty, nevertheless they were able to trace the results in 203 cases out of 265 that were treated.

Their figures are certainly a lesson to us in that every obstinate sore on the skin should be investigated thoroughly, because delays are dangerous. They were able to show that if these skin cancers were discovered early, and treated with radium, that over 80 per cent were cured.

Where the case had advanced to some extent of the cancer, whereas it delayed too long radium seemed to be of no avail.

The records showed that skin cancer was found to be just as prevalent in women as in men, whereas former statistics would seem to show that it occurred much more frequently in men.

Another point they were able to establish was occupation, whether indoors or out, did not seem to make any difference, whereas former records seemed to prove that skin cancer occurred more frequently "with those who have long followed outdoor occupations." Their series of cases showed that less than 30 per cent of the men and women worked outdoors.

The average number of treatments given these cases was three.

After the first treatment, there was a skin reaction or irritation, but in two or three weeks the irritation had subsided, and repair had set in.

The patient begins to feel an itching sensation about five days after the treatment. Immediately the part becomes very red and inflamed and at the end of ten days an ulceration starts. "At the end of a couple of weeks repair sets in, the symptoms disappear, the healing begins. At the end of three weeks, rarely four or five weeks, the reaction entirely ceases."

Although radium is rare and expensive, nevertheless no case of skin cancer need go untreated, as most of the hospitals are willing to treat cases where the patient hasn't the necessary money.

However my point as mentioned above is that no "old sore" should be allowed to remain anywhere on the body without a thorough examination as to the possibility of it being a skin cancer, because early treatment with radium gives such splendid results.

Today's Story in New York History

By Frederic A. Godcharles.

(Copyright, 1926, by the Author)

Martha Washington Arrived in New York as First Lady in the Nation, May 28, 1789.

The people of the infant republic showed affectionate regard for Martha Washington, as the wife of the first president, when she journeyed from Mount Vernon to New York to join her husband there after his inauguration. She arrived in the city May 28, 1789.

The inauguration ball had been postponed for a week in hope of her arrival, but she could not make her arrangements for it.

She left Mount Vernon in her chaise on May 19, 1789, with her two grandchildren George Washington Parke and Eleanor Parke Custis, and under charge of the president's nephew, Robert Lewis. They were delayed a short time by a carriage accident.

Mrs. Washington was received with demonstrations of respect all along the route. She lodged at Baltimore on the first night of her journey. When she approached that city she was met by a cavalcade of gentlemen and escorted into town. Fireworks were displayed in her honor, and a band of music serenaded her in the evening.

When she approached Philadelphia she was met, ten miles from the city, by General Thomas Mifflin, president of the state, two troops of light horses, prominent officials, and many ladies and gentlemen. Mrs. Robert Morris, with a company of ladies in carriages joined the escort near there, and they rode to Grays Ferry where a sumptuous collation was served.

From that point to the city Mrs. Morris occupied a seat by the side of Mrs. Washington, who was entertained at the Morris home until her start for New York two days later. When the procession entered Philadelphia the honored guest was greeted by a salute of thirteen guns. Upon her departure for New York Mrs. Washington was accompanied by Mrs. Morris, and was escorted upon her way for a considerable distance.

At Elizabeth Point on May 28, she was received by her distinguished husband, Robert Morris and other eminent gentlemen, and entered the same splendid barge in which Washington had been conveyed from the same place to New York a month before. It was manned by thirteen sailors.

When the barge approached White Hall, the landing place in New York, crowds of citizens were there assembled, who greeted the first lady of the land with enthusiastic cheers, and from the grand battery near by the thunders of thirteen cannons gave her a welcome.

In all this there was nothing very extravagant, considering the circumstances. Yet there were sturdy Republicans who viewed the pageantry with suspicion, believing that they saw in this a foreshadowing of monarchical ceremonies.

The subject of etiquette gave the president and his wife much anxiety. At heart he was a plain Virginia farmer, and formalities were irksome to him. But he was impressed by the necessity of presenting to the world an elegant Republican regime. They held "drawing rooms" but twice eight and nine every Friday evening. Wild reports of the "court" at New York were spread throughout the country. The president occasionally made calls on Vice President Adams, or on eminent official people, but had to be careful about public appearance.

Mrs. Washington for some time called on none. The first year of this lady's term as president's wife was a sort of martyrdom. She made a good impression on those who met her, but she was in no sense a woman of the world, and was shy amid the circle of remarkably brilliant ladies in political society.

Mrs. Washington was small of stature, and her expression amiable. She dressed richly, and her manners were of well-bred simplicity.

She greatly disliked official life, and rejoiced when her husband refused a third term in 1796.

She survived her husband two and a half years, dying at Mount Vernon, May 22, 1802.

SHARKS HONORED IN NEW GUINEA

Natives Believe Monsters
Bury Dead When Tossed Into Sea.

London.—Sharks' as household, or family, gods are unusual even in the list of queer deities worshiped by various races throughout the centuries, but they are quite normally recognized by certain tribes of natives of New Guinea, even in the year 1926.

Dr. J. H. Sandford Jackson, Jr., medical officer of the mandated—former German—territory of New Guinea, for the past five years has some surprising stories to tell of native customs in his otherwise matter-of-fact official report on conditions in the islands.

Each Group Has Shark.
"Each group of natives," he says, "has its own shark, which is a sort of patron saint. The shark belonging to a particular group lives close to the reef in the neighborhood of the village and is called 'Masely' or good fairy. The legend is that the shark, after the burial of a native at sea, hastens to hide the body. The natives declare that the shark does not permit them to see where the body is deposited, but under cover of a cloud of sand, stirred up by its powerful tail, conveys it to a hiding place among the coral rocks.

A member of a "pidgeon," or particular group of natives, says the doctor, is not molested by his own shark, which, although coming close, merely frisks about in play. Presumably any casualties among the natives are due to their incautiously approaching somebody else's shark. "The patron shark has a piece of land specially reserved for it on the beach," continues Doctor Jackson, "and this may not be approached except by members of the 'pidgeon' of which the shark is the 'guardian angel.' It is to a cave on this reserve that the soul of a native belonging to the particular 'pidgeon' is supposed to repair after death.

Rival Shark Dangerous.
Any member of another "pidgeon" who enters this cave becomes "Long long," or insane, but can be cured by a member of the same "pidgeon" as the spirit applying a liniment made of staghorn leaves, and praying to the spirit to remove the curse. The dangers of going near other folk's sharks are recognized by the islanders, and the local wiseacres naively say that anyone swimming near the lair of a rival shark will certainly be attacked, a fate which awaits strange canoes. The natives believe rival sharks will capsize adventurous canoes and make a meal of its occupants.

"A favorite story is told of a native who had stolen a bracelet belonging to a relative," says Doctor Jackson. "Despairing of obtaining redress, the lover of the bracelet prayed to his family shark to take up his cause. The shark accordingly lay in wait for the offender and attacked him, the man dying of his injuries." So the local sharks get fed without disturbing the natives' religious belief in their activities as guardian angels.

Says Prince of Wales

Talks Like Cockney

London.—The prince of Wales has a marked cockney accent, according to the dramatist, St. John Greer Ervine, who publicly debated the question, "Do we know how to pronounce English?" with the actor-manager, Nigel Playfair, recently.

Mr. Ervine grew hot over "the vile cockney accent and horrible Oxford voice" and appealed to women not to marry men guilty of talking in such voices.

The prince of Wales, Mr. Ervine declared, does not sound the letter "R" when speaking, although King George and Queen Mary do. The prince, he added, says "Howp" when he means "Hope" and one of the prince's brothers recently referred in a speech to the "dook of Yawk."

Mr. Playfair stood up for the English spoken in southeast England. This moved Mr. Ervine to wrath and he got back at Mr. Playfair by asking why he called his first name "Sinjin" instead of "Saint John."

Lonely Husband Seeks

Wife Missing 23 Years

Cambridge, Mass.—A lonely man of seventy appealed to newspapers to help him find the wife of his youth, who deserted him 23 years ago.

William B. Fellows married Anna Moran 30 years ago. After three years of happy married life she disappeared. A score of years passed and Mr. Fellows returned home one day to find her there. He asked no explanation for her absence, he says, and they took up life together again.

Three years later, with the same suddenness as at her first departure, he found himself alone once more, with only a brief note saying she would come back in the spring.

That was in the fall of 1902. Several years ago a nephew of Mrs. Fellows told the deserted husband his wife had died in Chicago, but he was never able to verify this, and today he asked newspapers to broadcast his appeal.

Road House Case Again Adjourned

A further adjournment of one week was taken this morning before U. S. Commissioner Arthur C. Connolly when the hearing in the case of the Federal authorities against Alphonso and Ralph Guida, James Capreotti, Dominic Damico and George Heldron came up. They are all charged with maintaining a public nuisance at a place known as the Mont-Claire on the Kingston-West Hurley road, about four miles from this city, Heldron being also charged with possessing liquor. The place was raided by State Troopers about three weeks ago. Two girls also were arrested but they have been allowed to go to their home; one in Albany and the other in Utica. The five men are out on bail on the Federal charge and also on charges brought by District Attorney Traver for keeping a disorderly house and a charge against Capreotti for possessing a revolver and a gun, the latter charge to be investigated by the grand jury. Flowers Not From Company. In speaking of the special floral pieces at the funeral of Alderman William G. Smith, it was stated one piece was from the American Railway Express Company. This was an error as the company sent no flowers, the piece being from the local Association of Railway Express Employees.

Russell Deeds Legal, Says Jury

Jury Finds Deeds Executed by Saugerties Man Were Legally Delivered to His Children Although Found in His Safe After His Death. The two questions submitted to the jury in the Supreme court in the partition action brought by Garret M. Russell of Saugerties against Jeremiah Russell, et al., were both answered in the affirmative. The questions were whether the Russell block in the village and the homestead property had been legally delivered by deed to the children of Fred T. Russell, deceased, at the time of his sudden death. Both of these pieces of property were conveyed by deed to certain of the children of the deceased. The deeds to the properties, however, had not been filed at the time of death of Fred T. Russell and were found in a sealed envelope in a safe the day after his death. Both deeds were filed subsequent to his death.

Plaintiff brought the action to determine if the deeds conveying the property had been legally delivered to the parties named therein prior to the death of Mr. Russell. William D. Brinler appeared and asked that motions on the part of the plaintiff be heard at a later date, as Mr. Canfield, who appeared for plaintiff, was out of town. Judge Rosch granted this request and reserved decision on motion of John W. Eckert, who appeared for certain of the defendants.

Kingston High School Notes

This evening the Glee Clubs and High School Orchestra will present a complimentary concert under the direction of C. R. Spaulding, musical director of the Kingston public schools. Concert master Frederick Brodie will render several violin selections. Tickets are in the hands of the members of the Glee Clubs for distribution.

Tennis. Saturday afternoon the High School tennis team plays its rival Poughkeepsie High School at the Forsyth Park courts. The work of the tennis team so far this year needs no commendation from the school. It has shown what it is worth in the matches so far played. Monday the same team will meet Schenectady at the Forsyth courts. To all appearances the High School team stands a fine chance of winning this match also.

Baseball and Track. On Saturday the baseball and track teams compete with Albany Academy at Albany. The baseball team had had some hard practice this week and are confident of winning. Davis or Quackenbush will pitch. Schloff has been shifted to third base and P. Joyce to first. Otherwise the line up remains practically the same as in other games played so far this year.

Although the track team came in third at Poughkeepsie last week it is sure of winning at Albany because it has not so strong an opponent.

Regents' Exams. Regents' week this year is from June 14 to June 18. The program for the entire week will be announced later.

Memorial Day. The high school will be closed Monday for the Memorial Day but will reopen Tuesday.

Sweetser Enters British Finals

By Defeating Brownlow The 21st Hole Today—Will Meet Simpson Saturday In The Finals.

Murfield, Scotland, May 28.—Jesse Sweetser, fighting to carry the American invasion into the finals of the British Amateur Golf Championship, won his battle here this afternoon when he defeated the Hon. W. G. Brownlow on the twenty-first hole, in a semi-final match which will go down as a golfing classic.

Sweetser, former American champion, carried Brownlow, a youthful Irishman and son of Lord Lurgan, most of the way. At the seventeenth Brownlow made a valiant effort to rally and succeeded with a long putt. Again on the eighteenth the young Irishman, who has heretofore been known more as a musician than as a golfer, sunk another long putt and halved the match.

The battle then went to the nineteenth green with Sweetser fighting grimly to enter the final and Brownlow fighting just as determinedly to keep the American invasion from entering the final. The nineteenth was halved.

The crowd was enormous, the air was tense as the men went to the twentieth tee. There was a cracking of drives, and the click of iron shots. Another hole was halved.

The break came on the twenty-first. Sweetser won. The American invasion had been carried to the final and now Sweetser tomorrow will attempt a victory in the final, a feat that despite repeated attempts has not been accomplished for twenty-two years, when Walter Travis was too first and last American to win the British Amateur Championship.

Young Andrew Jamieson, who defeated Bobby Jones this morning, lost his semi-final match to Gordon Simpson, two and one.

Simpson and Sweetser will battle it out tomorrow over thirty-six holes.

Remains of Sweetser's Son. Mrs. Catherine Duggan of this city has sold three buildings on a large tract of land in Albany to the Sweetser family.

Accused Keavin On Death Bed

Alain Policeman's Death Bed Statement Accusing Keavin is Read—Dramatic Testimony Given at Today's Hearing by Geneva Police.

Auburn, N. Y., May 28.—Howard M. Keavin, on trial here as the slayer of Policeman Aeneas McDonald, smiled and chatted in whispers with his lawyer today as the jury which has his life in its hands listened to the reading of the officer's death bed statement accusing Keavin.

The statement was introduced during the testimony of Edward P. Murphy, Geneva attorney, who was called to the stand where McDonald was dying of his wounds in the Geneva General Hospital on February 19, 1924, to transcribe the officer's last words and permit him to swear to them.

It read: "I Aeneas McDonald, realizing that I have received gunshot wounds from which I am informed, and I believe, I am about to die, and having given up hope of recovery, make the following dying statement of the shooting last night: 'That is the bird who shot me last night. I can see him and recognize him. The priest has been here and I know I am about to die.'"

After he had sworn to the statement, according to Murphy's testimony, the stricken police officer raised his hand feebly, pointed to Keavin, and repeated: "There's the bird that shot me last night."

Witness Says Keavin Feared Shot. That Keavin shot McDonald because he was afraid the officer might fire first when they met behind Quinn's Garage in Geneva while a search was on for the man who had just shot down Sergeant Fritz of the New York Central special police was indicated by the story told by Jerry McNeerney.

McNeerney, a Geneva policeman, followed Attorney Murphy on the stand.

"Did you see Keavin off the morning of the shooting?" asked District Attorney N. D. Lapham.

"Yes, I was down in the cellroom with him," replied McNeerney. "He asked me about the different attorneys at the county seat. While I was there, a Mr. Michael Quinlan came in."

"Did you hear any conversation between Quinlan and Keavin?" "Yes, Quinlan asked the prisoner: 'Why did you send for me? I don't know you.' Keavin replied: 'Sure, I know you ten years ago when you were a bartender. Then Quinlan asked him: 'Why did you shoot that old fellow?' Mr. McDonald wouldn't hurt anybody. I knew him many years and know that he did many a good turn.' Then Keavin said: 'You know me; if anybody throws stones at me, I will throw them back.' And Quinlan answered: 'McDonald didn't throw any stones at you.' Then Keavin said: 'I know it, but I didn't know what he might do.'"

Soap Wrapper Important Link. William Kuney, acting captain of the Geneva police on the night McDonald was murdered, told of searching Keavin and finding, among other things, eleven cartridges, a flashlight, a mirror, a deck of cards and a soap wrapper.

The soap wrapper became important during the testimony of the next witness, Frank E. Hurlburt, captain of the Rochester Division of the New York Central Railroad police force. He told of hastening to

LOVE OF WILD LURES INDIAN GIRL TO DEATH

Two Quit School as Spring Calls, but Storm Over- takes Them.

Nobara, Neb.—From the Rosebud Indian reservation across the state line in South Dakota has come a tale of love for the primitive Indian life on the part of two little Sioux Indian girls, who, although surrounded with all the conveniences afforded by a big modern boarding school, yet joined so strongly for the wild life of the tepee that they ran away from the school, braved a snowstorm at night, forded a big river, one freezing to death and the other displaying the greatest heroism in trying to save her little companion. Eventually the survivor reached an encampment of Indians and was saved.

Answer Call.
Laura High-Bald-Eagle and Libbie Never-Miss-A-Shot were the two little Indian girls. They were each thirteen years old. They came to St. Francis school last fall. They spent the hard winter months in the big brick building without pining. But with spring the call became so strong that they were determined to run away that night and go to their homes.

Shortly after they left the school the temperature started dropping. Then snow began falling. One of the sudden storms for which the Indian country of South Dakota is famous came up. The girls felt the sting of the wind through their light clothing.

In an hour they reached the banks of the Little White river. There was no bridge and no way of crossing at this point except by wading. The river is not deep but is very swift. Also, there are "pockets" in the bed of the stream.

In mid-stream Laura High-Bald-Eagle stepped into one of these pockets in deep swift water. She rolled over and over. Libbie Never-Miss-A-Shot came to her assistance and the two struggling little girls finally reached the other bank.

One Succumbs.
On land again, with their sudden garments rapidly stiffening in the cold, the two little girls continued their painful way across the river bottom in the direction of their homes. Laura, minus a shoe, suffered most, the frozen ground cutting through her stocking and lacerating her foot. Libbie helped her over the rough ground as best she could but the intense cold finally overcame the efforts of the little Indian and she fell again and again.

Libbie Never-Miss-A-Shot then carried her as far as she could but eventually was forced to lay her down in the snow. Then she found that Laura had ceased to breathe.

Leaving the dead girl in the snow, Libbie went on through the storm until she reached an Indian camp where she fell exhausted.

Libbie is back at the mission, suffering from exposure, but the white doctor at the mission says she will recover.

Survives Niagara Falls, Slips on Orange, Dies

London.—A dispatch to the Evening News from Christchurch, New Zealand, says that "Bobby" Leach, who went over Niagara falls in a steel barrel in 1911, is dead from injuries received when he slipped on a piece of orange peel in the street.

Leach broke a leg, which it was found necessary to amputate. "Bobby" Leach, a Canadian, achieved worldwide notoriety through his feat at Niagara falls. He was the second person to go over the falls and live, the first being Mrs. Anne Wilson Taylor of Niagara Falls, N. Y., who made the trip in a barrel October 28, 1901.

Leach's trip was made July 25, 1911. He was severely battered and bruised on the drop of 160 feet over the horseshoe falls, but his injuries were only superficial. He was thirty-one years old when he performed the feat.

Giant Firecracker

Routs Swarm of Bees

Grass Range, Mont.—A swarm of bees, fortified under a board walk on a principal street, the other day, might have caused pedestrians to detour indefinitely had it not been for a Napoleonic small boy, who, seeing the situation, darted home for a giant firecracker, left over from July 4. After the small lad had placed the cracker near the nest and lit the fuse, the bees went away from there, leaving a long casualty list.

CHICAGO BANDIT KILLS IN VAIN

Shoots Pursuer, Is Killed by Other Gunmen.

Chicago.—All in vain did a Chicago bandit steal $37,000 from a mail truck, rob a doctor of his car in which to flee, and finally kill a deputy sheriff to escape capture. For the bandit, taking refuge in a roadhouse, was slain by other outlaws there, robbed of his loot, and his body thrown in a ditch. Unidentified, the dead bandit has been buried in a potter's field by police.

The bandit, with a pistol in his hand, stopped Frank Fisher, a mail truck driver. The outlaw took the $37,000 and, forcing Watson to go with him, fled from the city. The bandit's car broke down and, again using his gun, he stole a machine from Dr. E. G. McMahon, outside the city.

The physician called the sheriff, and Deputy Walter Fisher drove in pursuit. Watson, in the meantime, escaped. Fisher shot the bandit three times before he himself was killed.

A few hours later the body of the bandit was found in a ditch. The loot was gone. Police believe the gunman took refuge in an inn, where he was slain and robbed. A dozen bullet wounds were in his body. It is known that the bandit was wounded only three times before he killed the officer who came within an ace of capturing him.

Works Month With Six- Inch Blade in Head

New York.—John Tyler Hines, twenty-eight years old, a negro, is telling how he went about his business almost a month without knowing he had a six-inch knife blade through his head.

He went to Harlem hospital March 15 in a taxicab, after what he called "a friendly altercation." He had a stab wound in his face sewed up and went home. The wound healed.

When at last he began to feel uncomfortable, he told Dr. Walter I. Delph of the Edgecombe sanitarium. The doctor found a steel point sticking out through the skin in front of Hines' right ear. It was opposite the healed wound on the left cheek, which he got the night of March 15 in what he calls "just an altercation between friends."

In the confusion of the fight, as Hines tells it, the man who struck the knife in his head "must have broke off the handle accidentally and just naturally left that blade right there."

X-ray photographs revealed the blade in position. It passed across his head just under the brain cavity and the point stuck out slightly in front of the right ear.

Doctor Delph, with the assistance of Drs. James L. Wilson and M. E. Ross, pulled the blade out of Hines' head and gave it to him as a souvenir. It is slightly discolored, but otherwise intact.

Stolen Bonds Returned but Without Any Claw

Washington.—The treasury has received from an anonymous source $151,000 in Liberty bonds missing from the First National bank of Los Angeles.

James B. O'Neill, a teller, disappeared from the bank simultaneously with the report that the bonds were missing and search is now being conducted for him, his friends asserting that he suffered a nervous breakdown and had no intention of stealing the securities.

Although $25,000 of the fund still is missing, those active in the case expect this sum to be returned also.

The bonds were forwarded to the treasury by mail from Baltimore, the postmark indicating they were deposited the post office there.

The sender of the bonds requested that they be registered in the names of their owners who had deposited them in the Los Angeles bank.

Fairmont, W. Va.—Last January John H. Today McNeil is dead, having succumbed to injuries received in a fall down three steps of a flight of stairs. McNeil and his fellow workers were celebrated two days and nights.

Making Farm Property Safe In Ulster County

Farm Bureau Manager Wigen Explains Vigilance Service by Which Thievery of Posing Motorist Will Be Punished—Thoughtlessness
Cause of Many Petty Thefts.

The New York State Farm Bureau Vigilance Service was explained from Station WDBZ Kingston on Wednesday night by F. M. Wigen, manager of the Ulster County Farm Bureau, who said:

The New York State Farm Bureau Federation is a state-wide organization. It is a federation of the members of County Farm Bureaus in fifty-three counties of the state. Agricultural matters of state-wide concern are turned over to the elected and employed officers of the federation for their attention. Some years ago an appeal was made to the federation by a group of New York state farmers for assistance in curbing petty thievery, trespass and property damage. Since that time numerous other appeals have been forthcoming. In response to the appeal from members that steps be taken to curb this annual loss, the New York State Farm Bureau Federation at a meeting last November offered the plan of a state wide vigilance service. It met with instant approval by farm people. One big danger which was feared to exist and caused sponsors of the new plan some concern was the question, "How will the city man take to this method of farm protection? Will he be with it or 'Ag'in it?" Thanks to the fair-mindedness of the average man once properly informed on a subject, he sees the right side. Farmers have found city individuals and organizations almost unanimously sympathetic and in accord with the plan.

In the words of a prominent city dweller recently quizzed for his opinion, "I had no idea the loss from petty thievery, largely done by motorists could reach such proportions. We would consider such conditions in our city an outrage. I see no reason why farmers should not organize to curb their losses." This we believe voices the opinion of every fair-minded citizen who gives the matter fair consideration.

Farmers report two very distinct types of citizens who made consistent inroads on their property. The first type is a "bad man." He sleeps by day and rides by night. He strikes quietly under the cover of darkness, "lifts" every fowl in the hen roost—perhaps $50 worth, perhaps $500 worth. He is a dangerous character, carries a gun which he will use on provocation. He is an out and out criminal, to be apprehended and "given a ride."

The second type is the more common. In his home city he is well known, law abiding, respected. He owns a car, rides out in the early evening, Sundays and holidays. He has a peculiar consciousness however, that tells him that once outside the city line "all law is off." He is thoughtless, careless. He loves his joke, a very common one being to swipe a few apples, peaches, grapes, either the fruit or fruit blossoms; tomatoes, melons, a Christmas tree, perhaps, or some shrub for the lawn. His whole thought while in the act is to "get away with it." Once he does, his conscience is clear, even though his own young son or daughter may sit by in the car while he makes the raid.

The minds of the two types of individuals, the criminal and the respected citizen, are of entirely different trends. The damage to the farmer is on the same plane, however. He has suffered a financial loss in each case.

The plan of protection offered by the New York State Farm Bureau Federation Vigilance Service covers both types of losses, but in a different way.

The first type, that of the criminal, the plan is to apprehend, convict and sentence to as long a period as the law allows.

The plan for the respected citizen is as you might expect, "education;" to arouse in the minds of the city motorist a consciousness to the right of rural property owners, and to the damage and financial losses which they annually suffer through this lack of appreciation. According to the State Troopers this annual loss totals well over one million of dollars, an item not to be taken lightly. Farmers believe that once their position is understood by the motoring public, about 75 per cent of their losses will cease. Through publicity in newspapers, radio, talks before the city organizations, Kiwanis, Rotary Clubs, Chambers of Commerce, they have and will continue to keep this a live subject until it comes to be considered at least "bad form" if not a crime to pilfer and destroy farm property.

You will be interested in knowing how the 25 per cent who will not be educated, will not heed the warning, are to be looked after. First let me say that farmers are not looking for trouble, are not hurrying a threat. They seek understanding and a fair square deal. After that they have other means. As a warning farm properties will be posted with the following sign:

"Reward—A reward of $25 will be paid by the New York State Farm Bureau Federation for information leading to the arrest and conviction of persons guilty of grand larceny. (Effective June 1, 1926, to January 1st, 1927.) Member of New York State Farm Bureau Federation."

This sign at once a premium on the "swifter" hand. It makes it worth while to a disinterested observer to become interested and report a case. All cases will be immediately reported to the State Troopers who are the police force for the rural districts.

The New York State Troopers' organization is in sympathy and accord with this movement. They will take complete charge of arrest, and bringing the guilty one to court. State-wide publicity will be given to all cases, names will be published and severe sentences awarded. It will not be necessary for the one reporting the case to see that Feminine Humor.

"No man ever kissed me before."
"I would prefer that you remove your arm."

"I have never thought of matrimony. I have always been so happy as I am."

"I would rather you would not say I'm pretty. It sounds so silly."

"I never stayed out as late as this before."

"Don't squeeze my hand. I don't like it."

"Oh, Jim, of course I'll marry you. You've really been the one all the time."

Gladys—I don't know what part of your family tree you represent, but I think it must be the sap!

We once knew a man who belonged to nine lodges, but never ran for office, again demonstrating that anything can happen.

Vegetarian's Husband—Do you know, my dear, I really think we ought to have a bit of meat once in a while? Three times last night I caught myself whinnying.

Onion is a popular new style color. But you can take that with a grain of salt.

A small boy in a Chicago school refused to take part in a sewing lesson on the ground that it was beneath his dignity.

"George Washington sewed," said the teacher, taking it for granted that every soldier has to do it at times. "You don't consider yourself better than Washington, do you?"

"I don't know; time will tell," replied the boy.

The real trouble with gossip is that it is much harder to stop than start.

Simplest form of buck-passing:
"Ask your mother."

Many a man has fallen in love with a dimple and married the whole girl.

"Have you read 'Excelsior'?"
"No, but we have yellow shredded wheat."

Everybody can have his own way until he gets to be about a year old.

"Are you the man who cut my hair last time?"
"I couldn't be, sir, I've only been here a year."

Man is the only animal that can be skinned more than once.

Mr. Blink—That was a howlin' time the baby had last night.

Dr. Soother—Yes, but did the baby get a good night's rest after I sent that sleeping powder over?

Mr. Blink—We don't know. My wife and I took the powder between us and we went straight off to sleep.

No Withdrawals

Bobby and Betty were indulging in a conversation consisting mostly of boasting. "My father," remarked Bobby proudly, "works in a bank that has more deposits than any bank in town. I heard him tell my mother."

There was a silence while Betty collected her thoughts. "What's the matter with that bank?" she asked at length. "Is it for men only?"

Care of Sponges

To keep sponges in good condition you should occasionally wash them in warm water with a little tartaric acid or soda, afterward rinsing in clear warm water.

The arrest is made. Simply obtaining the license number of the car will entitle him to the reward when the party is convicted.

This service is in operation in Ulster county now. Warning signs have been sold to over fifty Farm Bureau members, and may be seen posted conspicuously along the highway. As the fruit and vegetable season advances many more will be in demand. Sergeant Cunningham, of the State Troopers, Sheriff Wells and a large percentage of town justices have promised their support.

The support of our own city motorists is earnestly solicited. The only one to be watched then will be the transient who has not learned to respect Ulster county property.

For the benefit of Farm Bureau members who are interested in, signs may be purchased at ten cents each at the Farm Bureau office. The payment of rewards, printing of signs and other financial obligations for the support of the service is cared for from the income from these signs.

They will be mailed you on request. In closing I take this opportunity to congratulate the Chambers of Commerce and people of Kingston on their decision to relate themselves to Station WDBZ and to offer legal support from the Farm Bureau. I thank you very kindly.

APRIL— THE GREATEST MONTH PACKARD Ever had

MORE new Packard cars were delivered in April than in any month of the twenty-six years that Packard has been making fine motor cars.

May promises to out-do record-breaking April.

With retail deliveries much greater than current production,
June will surely see a shortage of Packard cars. As a matter of fact, there is already a shortage in several models.

Quality cannot be hurried nor production doubled quickly.

Among the cars on which prompt delivery can still be made is the Packard Six Five-Passenger Sedan.

This car, the most popular of all Packard models, costs but freight and tax paid.

When bought on the payment

quired on delivery with pay-

If you have a used car it will be appraised fairly in this, the best and its value applied against the delivery payment on the new car. Any excess will be credited against the monthly payments.

Jones Eliminated; Sweetser Wins

Bobby Jones is Eliminated From British Tourney By Jamieson—Sweetser Becomes a Semi-Finalist

Muirfield, Scotland, May 23.—Jesse Sweetser of New York today stands as the lone American contender for the British Amateur Golf Championship.

Bobby Jones, American champion after heroic golf yesterday, today met a sudden reversal of form and was eliminated from the tournament by A. Jamieson, Jr., an almost unknown Scotsman. Jamieson defeated the American champion four and three.

Sweetser made a gallant comeback, for up to the ninth it appeared as though he would fall victim to another almost unknown Scotsman, Robert Scott, Jr. The American, however, fought his way back out of the depths and won a two-hole victory, and becomes a semi-finalist.

Conditions Favorable.

The weather was again ideal and to the American liking. A warm sun was shining and the wind was light. The greens were faster than they have been at any time since the tournament started.

The Hon. W. G. Brownlow, who had previously eliminated Grant Peacock and Watts Gunn from the tournament, turned his attention to his own countrymen today and defeated W. A. Murray, five and four. Murray is a former member of the British Walker Cup Team.

Brownlow now meets Jamieson in the semi-finals.

How Sweetser Won.

Sweetser started badly. He continually hooked into the rough and his putting was far from certain. Sweetser ran up a seven on the first hole, while Scott was one over par for a five. The second hole was halved in par four. Sweetser was two down at the third where he had a five as against Scott's par four. The fourth was halved in par three, and the fifth was halved in par five. The sixth was halved in birdie four. Scott took the seventh with a par three while Sweetser was one over par in four. The eighth was halved in par five. Sweetser won one back at the long ninth where he had a par five and Scott was one over par in six.

The cards out were:

Sweetser, out 7-4-5-3-5-4-4-5-2-42
Scott, out 5-4-4-3-5-4-2-5-6-43

Time and again it has been written of Jones' victories that "Youth will be served," but today this may be written of Jones' defeat. The Atlanta youth fell prey to the steady golf of a man star on the horizon, a player even more youthful than himself. Andrew Jamieson is just twenty-one and it is only recently that his father permitted him to play in the senior ranks. This is his first year of big time golf and his play today indicated that he will be heard from again and often. His chip shots to the pin were the sensation of his play today, and the best displayed during the tournament.

Jamieson, a rather retiring and bashful Scotch boy, this afternoon plays the Honorable W. G. Brownlow, the son of Lord Lurgan, who plays with his gloves on and is known as an excellent musician and vocalist as well as a golfer.

Jones appeared to be nervous during his match against Jamieson, for he puffed away at cigarette after cigarette as the tide turned against him. The American Champion was slightly handicapped by a stiff neck, which had developed over night but which is not expected to develop into anything that may hamper him from the Walker Cup Matches.

The grandstand is now entirely completed and the concession booths will be in operation on Memorial Day, where refreshments of various kinds will be on sale.

AMERICAN AND FRENCH TENNIS TEAMS CLASH

Paris, May 23.—Murky weather and a drizzling rain this morning threatened to postpone the keenly awaited clash of the French and American Tennis Teams, scheduled to start at 2:30 in the afternoon.

Although even Max Decugis, captain of the French team, joined with the general consensus of opinion in conceding a victory to the invaders, Vincent Richards and Howard Kinsey, the American Stars, were prepared for a stiff battle with Rene Lacoste and Jacques Brugnon in the singles.

Much of the pessimism in French tennis circles regarding the outcome is due to the absence of Miles Leggett and Viator. Jack Borotra is also not participating because of an injury to his knee.

So Cobb Went Back to Finish His Sleep

Here is a story of Joe Sargent's snoring:

When Sargent was a Tiger leader the team went to Madison, Wis. Out for an exhibition game, Sargent made the trip, but did not appear in the lineup.

On the way back a group of the players were discussing international politics or something. Ty Cobb was stretched out at the rear of the car dozing.

"I just wish somebody would tell me what that guy brought me over here for," spoke up Sargent, somewhat disgruntled.

"Cobb stretched up."

"Well, I'll tell you why he brought you along," he told Sargent.

"Never mind," replied Sargent. "You are supposed to be asleep."

And Cobb dropped back into his slumber.

Tagging Major League Bases

Not even Walter Johnson fazed the Athletics, who advanced to second place by bowling over the Senators again, 3 to 2. Pate won his own game with a double.

Returning home after the most disastrous tour since the prodigal son made his famous road trip, the penitent St. Louis Browns pounded out an 8 to 9 victory over the Indians. The defeat cost Cleveland second place.

The White Sox nosed out the Tigers in the twelfth, 5 to 4, in a loosely played game featured by Falk's hitting. The victory enabled the Sox to take fourth place away from Washington.

The dizzy heights of the first division proved to be too much for the Cardinals, who dropped both ends of a double-header to the Reds, 4 to 3 and 2 to 1. Pete Donahue and Carl Mays provided the pitching for the winners and plenty of it.

Brooklyn regained fourth place by breaking even with the Phillies, losing the first game 3 to 1 and romping away with the nightcap to the tune of 5 to 1.

The Pirates raised their world series pennant and then lowered their percentage by losing to the Cubs, 5 to 2. Tony Kaufman turned in a pitching performance and drove in three runs in the bargain.

Cubans Are Heavy Hitters

Game Here Sunday Between Colonials and Cuban Stars Should Prove a Very Interesting Affair.

The Flushing club which hails from Long Island will oppose the Colonials on Sunday, June 6, at the Fair Grounds. Although a strange club to local fans this outfit has also turned out many powerful wins down in their section with such clubs as the Farmers and the Beckwiths.

Cubans Heavy Hitters.

Already started on their season's trail with three wins and no black-eyes the Colonials will find themselves in a dangerous pass Sunday afternoon at the Fair Grounds with the Cuban Stars of Havana as their rivals. Two seasons in succession the Stars have swooped down on the Kingstons and snatched their scalps with little effort, once in 1924 and twice in 1925, consequently the locals will be given an opportunity to retain their head covering this Sunday.

The Cubans will have practically the same line up used in other years which will mean trouble for the Colonials. The Stars are an outfit keen on circuit clerks and wherever they go they somehow manage to demonstrate their affection for the four-basers. Crests, the second baseman; Dihigo, third baseman, and Oms, the center fielder with the biggest appetite of all, are the most troublesome hitters of the outfit. A week ago the Cubans trimmed the Farmers by a 15 to 3 tally with Oms seeming wild in this contest, hitting two home runs.

Annual Meet at Harvard Stadium

Three California Teams Will Battle For the Title, With Southern California Favored—East Representation Very Weak.

By Davis J. Walsh.

Cambridge, Mass., May 23.—In the repressed, well-bred atmosphere of the Harvard Stadium, the annual two-day track and field championships of the collegiate east will get under way this afternoon and the funny thing about it, provided one's sense of humor is sufficiently acute, is that two and possibly three California teams will make the fight for the title. It, therefore, seems to be ordained that California must furnish the east with a champion, although this is nothing to get animated about.

It has been so, almost without interruption, since 1920. This state of affairs might savor of an absolute monopoly of honors, if it wasn't for one thing. California permits the east to hold the meet. It merely insists on holding the title.

Yale Won Once.

The dynasty began in 1921 when the California Bear uncovered the first of three consecutive championship teams. Yale broke through service so to speak, and partly reaffirmed eastern prestige by winning in 1924 but Southern California resumed the coast's domination last year and now, some say it will be Stanford's turn.

If not, Southern California seems certain to repeat. The later, in fact, was a general pre-meet favorite until it lost the coast title at Stanford, yet no one can laugh off U. S. C.'s four-man combination of Houser, Dye, Grumbles and Barnes, which virtually may be staked to 26 points before they open the stadium doors. The team is figuring on 35 points altogether, which probably would be a great plenty.

Stanford, however, should get better than thirty and if Hoffman happened to beat Houser in one of the weight events, the thing would be closer than a pair of nostrils. The writer likes U. S. C.'s chances, largely because it is depending less upon the running events and coast runners seldom hold their form through the long overland trip.

Contenders for Third Place.

California will be a dangerous contender also but probably will be hard pressed to hold third place against Yale and Harvard, the only real title contenders the east can claim. Neither is a prospective champion but Harvard, very strong in the running events and coast runners seldom hold their form through the long overland trip.

Neither is a prospective champion but Harvard, very strong in the running events and coast runners seldom hold their form through the long overland trip.

Stanford, however, should get better than thirty and if Hoffman happened to beat Houser in one of the weight events, the thing would be closer than a pair of nostrils. The writer likes U. S. C.'s chances, largely because it is depending less upon the running events and coast runners seldom hold their form through the long overland trip.

Yale Won Once.

The dynasty began in 1921 when the California Bear uncovered the first of three consecutive championship teams. Yale broke through service so to speak, and partly reaffirmed eastern prestige by winning in 1924 but Southern California resumed the coast's domination last year and now, some say it will be Stanford's turn.

If not, Southern California seems certain to repeat. The later, in fact, was a general pre-meet favorite until it lost the coast title at Stanford, yet no one can laugh off U. S. C.'s four-man combination of Houser, Dye, Grumbles and Barnes, which virtually may be staked to 26 points before they open the stadium doors. The team is figuring on 35 points altogether, which probably would be a great plenty.

Contenders for Third Place.

California will be a dangerous contender also but probably will be hard pressed to hold third place against Yale and Harvard, the only real title contenders the east can claim. Neither is a prospective champion but Harvard, very strong in the running events and coast runners seldom hold their form through the long overland trip.

Stanford, however, should get better than thirty and if Hoffman happened to beat Houser in one of the weight events, the thing would be closer than a pair of nostrils. The writer likes U. S. C.'s chances, largely because it is depending less upon the running events and coast runners seldom hold their form through the long overland trip.

SWEETS FROM HONEY

Those who "keep a bee" these days will find it most profitable. There are so many delicious dishes which may be prepared from honey. For the children there is no sweeter morsel. A hive of bees in every back yard will furnish honey for a year. They tell us that the average hive yields 60 pounds of honey.

Honey Candy.—To one quart of strained honey take six tablespoons of butter, two tablespoons of vinegar and boil until it hardens in water. Flavor with a teaspoonful each of almond and lemon extract, add one-half teaspoonful of soda and pour into buttered pans to cool. Mark off into squares before it gets too hard.

Honey Fruit Cakes.—Warm one-half cupful of brown sugar and one cupful of honey until it hardens in cold water. Remove from the heat, add one-half teaspoonful of soda, and all the pulled rice, wheat or popcorn that can be stirred into it.

Who Likes to Be Shelved?

By EUDORA A. RICHARDSON

(Copyright.)

MRS. SIMPSON walked slowly up the steps of her daughter's home. The death of the older sister, with whom she had made her home was sending her to live with Louise and Louise's husband, Beale. It would not be so bad if Beale's father were not already a permanent boarder at his son's house. Mrs. Simpson would be just one more in the way.

At dinner that night Mrs. Simpson studied her daughter's father-in-law from across the flowers and shaded candles. Doctor Miller was an unobtrusive enough person perhaps five years her senior. After dinner he smoked one cigar with Beale and then rose to go.

"I must be reading now," he said with the trace of a shadow across his face.

"Don't hurry, father," Louise urged cordially. "It's a foolish notion you have that young people want to be alone every evening."

Doctor Miller patted Louise's shoulder. "I remember, my dear, that I was once young," he said.

For awhile Mrs. Simpson sat in a brown study. Doctor Miller was perfectly right. If she and Elmer had had some deadly old in-law, sitting around during those first days, she would have thought herself abused, indeed. Louise and Beale had a right to their romantic seas a lone.

"Tonight I must unpack," she said, rising.

As she lifted her clothes from trunk to closet and tried to give the pretty guest-room a homelike appearance, Mrs. Simpson blinked now and then to keep back a rebellious tear. Then she faced her reflection in the mirror. She was not old. There were no wrinkles in her smooth face; she wasn't thin and shriveled or fat and pudgy. There was no earthly reason why she should not find something useful to do. Perhaps Louise would assign her some household tasks.

The next day, however, disappointed her hopes. Two servants did all the work about Louise's home.

"Now, sit right down, mother, and make yourself comfortable," Louise admonished as she hurried off to a bridge luncheon.

Mrs. Simpson tried to sit. She did it poorly. She read until the words blurred before her eyes. Then she just stared out of the window, feeling rather envious of all the people in the world who had work to do. Louise was busy and happy; Beale was in an eternal rush; Doctor Miller still had office hours and calls to make.

There was the sound of a key being turned in the latch of the front door, and Doctor Miller entered, bringing with him a gust of wind from the street. He came into the living room rubbing his hands and looking the picture of good cheer. As he saw Mrs. Simpson, his face grew serious.

"Ah, you've been alone all day," he guessed. "Louise is very popular. Attractive girl—your daughter."

"Yes," Mrs. Simpson smiled. "Let me bring you some of the books that make my evenings less desolate. I find that old people must read a great deal, Mrs. Simpson."

Doctor Miller trotted upstairs with a buoyancy that belied his age. He was a distinguished looking gentleman, Mrs. Simpson decided. Louise had not done badly when she married into the Miller family. Soon Doctor Miller returned with a book, and Mrs. Simpson bore it off to her room.

That night and the next day she read with real zest. Then late in the afternoon she smoothed her wavy hair, put a bit of powder on her nose and went down to await the return of Doctor Miller. There were several points in the story that she would really enjoy talking over with some one.

So the weeks passed—Doctor Miller supplying the reading matter and the chats at twilight, and Mrs. Simpson sewing a little, but reading much. Strangely, Cornelia Simpson told herself, she was not altogether unhappy. It was funny, too, that the very person she had dreaded was making life with Beale and Louise endurable.

At last there came a night when the daughter and son-in-law were dining out. Mrs. Simpson sat at the head of the table, and Doctor Miller at the foot. It was a cozy little dinner.

"Don't you want coffee with your dinner instead of afterwards?" Cornelia Simpson asked. "Must men like it better that way?"

"Yes," Doctor Miller replied, "and can't we have the vegetables left on the table, so that the butter won't have to be standing around?"

After dinner Cornelia Simpson and Doctor Miller gravitated naturally toward the living room.

"I guess we're not intruding tonight," Doctor Miller suggested.

"Oh, the children are very kind," Mrs. Simpson defended.

"That isn't it, but who likes to be shelved? You provide over a huge bonfire of books, and then you tell me that you could try it again with an old man who would bring you books and not bother you?"

"No," she said, shaking her head with real emphasis. "I could not stand not to be bothered."

The man's face, which had momentarily clouded, cleared again. He was a good humorist than his son, Cornelia Simpson thought.

"Agreed," he smiled, taking in his the smooth white hands that lay on the woman's lap. "Louise will never on the day that she is half as lively as her mother," he added happily.

LAST NIGHT on THE RADIO

WMSG broadcasted from the ring-side very clearly what the announcer stated was "a beautiful fight."

With the exception of a spasm of gasping and panting in the middle of the program by the Marine Band WGY was just about perfect.

The same applies to WJZ, the exception in this case being fat frying instead of gasping. WEAF, clear but weak, was also good. From these four stations anyone could tune in a program that was worth hearing.

WDBZ broadcasted in secret Wednesday night. Why the secrecy? Secrecy does not bring in dollars or encourage listeners.

Y's Men Club Receives Charter

New Organization Makes Auspicious Start With Banquet, Charter Presentation, Speeches and Entertainment—Cohoes Delegation Seeks Return Visit.

Wednesday evening was a big night for the local Y's Men Club when Harold W. Bennett, lieutenant-governor of New York State District of Y's Men's Clubs, formally presented them with their charter in the presence of about seventy-five friends at the Y. M. C. A. The charter was accepted by Dr. Julian I. Gifford and the club is now officially identified with the International Y's Men's Clubs which is a world wide movement and modeled along the same lines as the other service clubs such as the Rotary and Kiwanis.

A delegation of thirty-eight Y's men and friends motored from Cohoes, N. Y., coming the distance of seventy-five miles especially for this charter presentation. Their enthusiasm helped greatly to make the evening the wonderful success it was.

At seven o'clock the entire company entered the large room on the second floor where the tables were set and very prettily decorated and after singing America, John H. Haulenbeck, president of the Kingston club, called upon the Rev. Dr. Lucas Boeve, pastor of the First Dutch Church, to ask the blessing. The menu was:

Roast Beef Celery
Whipped Potatoes Dressing
Peas and Carrots in Cream
Lettuce and Tomato Salad
Ice Cream Assorted Cakes
Coffee

During the dinner and throughout the evening a very enjoyable musical program was rendered by the Blue Bird Orchestra composed of Kenneth N. Lowe, W. G. Scheffel, P. Rhymmer, Arthur Floyd, Frank Hoffman, William W. Brady, chorister of the club, led the singing during the courses of peppy Y's Men songs and sung only Y's men can sing them.

After the dinner a very elaborate program was rendered. The first number being a splendid solo by Frank Elmendorf accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Elmendorf. Lieutenant Governor Harold W. Bennett in a very interesting address presented the charter which Dr. Julian I. Gifford accepted with a few well chosen words. Emerson Tiff of the Cohoes club presented the Kingston club with a gavel. Mr. Smith, Kingston's Boy Scout executive, gave a very interesting address after which much fun was gotten out of the Classification Roll Call by James Scott.

One of the features of the program was a very novel musical number put on by John Dixon of the Cohoes Club who selected eight of the local Y's Men who under his leadership played several selections on special musical instruments. Much fun was created by the manner in which he dressed up the local men. The idea was very clever and created much favorable comment.

Miss Jessie M. Cowley, Kingston's well known singer, sang two delightful solos accompanied on the piano by Miss Ruth Scott.

President Haulenbeck then called upon Warren W. Brower, Richard R. Bolton and Frank Wheelock of the Cohoes delegation for short addresses. In response to the Cohoes club and extended an invitation for a return visit.

President Hathaway of the Rotary Club and President Balts of the Kiwanis Club were called upon and extended greetings from their clubs and wished the new club every success.

Al. W. Buley, physical director of the Y. M. C. A., put on a stunt entitled "The Fashion Show" which was a riot of fun. The first stunt was a milk bottle contest between six husky babies and was won by Fred Smith who was presented with a handsome baby. The last stunt which by far was the best was a hat trimming race and was won according to the ladies by Floyd Cowley. The creation he made in the allotted five minutes was truly marvelous and could only be duplicated by a visit to a rummage sale. All those who have witnessed stunts put on by Al Buley know how good they are.

The last number on the program was an address on "Why a Y's Men's Club?" by President John H. Haulenbeck who briefly outlined why the club was organized and what it proposed to do.

Much credit must be given to General Secretary John C. Porter through whose efforts the Kingston Y's Men Club was organized and through whose hard work and conscientious efforts has paved the way for a most bright and prosperous future. This is the second club which Mr. Porter has organized.

The club starts with a charter membership of twenty-five consisting of John H. Haulenbeck, president; Homer Bruch, first vice-president; Thomas Rowland, second vice-president; Charles W. Smith, third vice-president; Louis T. Whittey, treasurer; and Fred L. Van Deusen, secretary; James Baldwin, William W. Brady, Jr., Alfred Baker, William Clark, Floyd Cowley, Gordon Craig, Irving Davis, Lester Finley, Julian I. Gifford, Felix Katz, Ernest LeFerre, Kenneth Lowe, George Mathers, Wilson Norwood, John C. Porter, James Scott, Fred Smith, Ray Withler and Clarence Wolfenstein.

Heiress Weds

Alisa Mellon, daughter of the Secretary of the Treasury, posed with David K. Bruce just before their wedding in Washington, D. C.

In Memory of Buddha

In the Buddhist monastery of Kumbun, Tibet, there is a carpet of silk tapestry having an area of 30,000 square feet, which is embroidered with a portrait of Buddha, and pictures depicting incidents of his life. Once a year at noon on a sunny day, the carpet is spread on a neighboring hillside, and thousands of pilgrims assemble to view it. The object is to give Buddha a glimpse of the world he once inhabited.

Bells and Cannon

A well-made carillon bell properly hung and rightly used lasts practically forever. Only the purest copper and tin go into their construction. Until the present generation cannon were made of the same bronze as were carillon bells. Such bells in the Netherlands were not infrequently converted in time of war into cannon and returned again to their bell form when peace came.

Goes 12,000 Miles to Fish

In the hope of catching a swordfish, Dr. George Radmore of Beckenham park, in Kent, England, is traveling more than 12,000 miles to New Zealand. He hopes to hook one of the giant swordfish in the New Zealand waters. Some of the fish there weigh as much as 400 pounds. He says there is no sporting thrill like feeling a swordfish tugging at the line.

Compliments of Worth

Compliments of congratulation are always kindly taken, and cost nothing but pen, ink and paper. I consider them as drafts upon good breeding, where the exchange is always greatly in favor of the drawer.—Chesterfield.
